With this page the 1975 Nautilus is dedicated to Dale Gunderson. He was possibly the greatest asset the college had, and when he passed away, both the college and the community felt a great loss. The work he did, however, may well never pass away.

Let me offer my congratulations to the Nautilus staff for effectively capturing the spirit of the past year in the pages of this annual. Each of us delights in reminiscing, and there is, perhaps, no more significant period worth recalling than the collegiate years. A yearbook, like a great book or a work of art, takes on more meaning as the years pass because it brings into focus people, experiences, and events as memories tend to fade.

I am particularly pleased with the fine group of graduating sophomores whose contributions have enhanced so many areas of college life. They also have made significant progress toward the fulfillment of personal objectives; I wish them well in future endeavors. The freshmen have successfully made their transition to college work; I trust they will pursue their future goals with determination.

Grays Harbor College has a rich heritage. It continues to be a very special place because of people— an enthusiastic student body, a concerned Board of Trustees, a friendly and helpful classified staff, and a dedicated professional staff. I am grateful to them all for yet another successful college year.

Students of Grays Harbor College:
I am pleased to express words of greetings and best wishes to this year's students of Grays Harbor College. I am equally pleased to see the revival of a yearbook which, in years to come, will serve as a document portraying the life and activities of 1974-75.

As a former graduate of Grays Harbor College, I have come to realize more and more importance of our educational and activities program. This past year showed a marked increase in student involvement and concern for both areas which, in the long run, will strengthen already strong programs.

My thanks go to the many students who devoted numerous hours in promoting the various programs.

Congratulations to the graduating sophomores and I look forward to seeing many of the freshmen back at GHC next year.

Coach Hake reflects back on the season;

Actually, my preseason expectations were to win the Western division title and be the West's representative to the play-off bowl. I felt we would be able to get by everyone except possibly Spokane Falls at Spokane. Our loss to Olympic was a real surprise and pulled the curtain on our chance at the play-off. Any loss to a Western division school really hurts.

I feel that the "Chokers" showed a lot of character in coming back from two wins and three losses after five games to finish the season at 6-3 with four straight wins. Finishing in a tie for the division title after such a dismal start says a lot for the "Chokers."

The hardest part about giving blood isn't getting the plasma out of your body, as many college students found out when they tried to "do their duty". All donors submit to various tests to prove their blood is up to the standard set by the Red Cross for donations.

Pam Decker (lower left) was one of 146 students who participated in the fall blood drive, with even more students in line who finally had to be turned away because of the great response swamping the staff.

For the seventh time in nine years, the Grays Harbor wrestling team has brought the NWAACC championship back to this campus. Ron Gallegos and Brian Farmer each won individual titles, while there were six second place finishes and one fourth place finish to round out what is definitely an example of a team effort.

In March, two G.H.C. wrestlers, Henry Lujan and Clayton Bradbury, travelled to Lincoln, Nebraska to participate in the Junior World National Tournament. Winners of each weight class will be touring Germany and Rumania from May 31 to June 23. Clayton, at 136.5lbs. and Henry, at 149.5lbs. both won Junior World titles plus Henry won the Most Falls trophy of the tourney for falling four of the six men he wrestled against. Both will be outstanding representatives for the United States as well as for Grays Harbor.

THOUGHTS
The second annual Washington Student Legislature, again held in Ellensburg at the Central Washington State College conference center, saw five delegates from Grays Harbor College. They were Bill Ballard, Teri Besecker, Tim Harrington, Joe Mayes, and Allan Mustard.

Senator Bill Ballard introduced two controversial bills, one decriminalizing marijuana and the other declaring a moratorium on building nuclear plants. His other bills, while perhaps not as hotly debated, were just as important as students from all around the state gathered. Bills passed into "law" at the April session have a chance of being introduced into the state legislature.

In all, the GHC "legislators" sponsored 19 bills out the total 54 introduced into the mock House and Senate. Subjects included preservation of clam beds, tuition free community college education, standards for becoming a municipal policeman, establishment of safe hitchhiking areas, and nuclear plant construction.

Just as important was Grays Harbor's hand in killing legislation, including acts relating to prisoners visitation rights and certain state constitutional amendments, among others.

The Grays Harbor College Association of Veterans was reorganized last spring with the help of the first chairman, Steve Richter, and the advisor, Jim Fenton. All veterans and dependants attending G.H.C. are eligible to belong and this organization is a member of the Washington Association of Veterans.

The first year was very busy, especially in the field of legislature. Also the club motto, VETS’ HELPING VETS, was utmost in their minds when any decision was made. Thanks to the local VFW’s and the American Legion the club has a loan fund to help out needy vets. Many have been able to attend G.H.C. due to the club’s help.

Early this year, GHC Vets held an historic reenactment of depression day’s apple selling to bring the proposed G.I. Bill increase to the public’s attention. It passed and the vet’s received a 23% increase in benefits.
