DOCUMENTATION GUIDELINES FOR HEARING DISABILITIES

Disability Category:

- Hearing Impairment

Professional Diagnostician(s) to be consulted:

- Certified Otologist
- Audiologist

Guidelines

- Documentation of a disability must be generated by a medical or professional expert in the related field of disability and submitted in writing to Accessibility Services where it will be kept in a separate, confidential file. (NOTE: A diagnosis of a disorder/condition/syndrome in and of itself does not automatically qualify an individual for accommodations under the ADA, Section 504 or Washington State Law).
- A hearing loss can range from mild to profound. Each student's hearing loss, background, course of study, and sign language preferences should be considered in the documentation.
- Any hearing loss evaluation is considered to be in the medical domain and requires the expertise of a credentialed audiologist (CCC—Certificate of Clinical Competence). Information describing the certification, licensure, and/or the professional training of individuals conducting the evaluation must be provided.

Documentation

- Documentation should show historical and/or recent impact of the disability to support individual "self-report". The documentation should include the following components:
- A copy of the audiology report;
- A brief written description of the severity of the hearing loss;
- A description of assistive devices/services currently prescribed or in use, including the possible effectiveness of these devices or services in an educational setting (note: hearing aids are considered devices of a personal nature and their cost and maintenance are the responsibility borne by the student);
- A description of the expected progression or stability of the hearing loss over time;
- Suggestions of accommodations with supporting evidence may included.

Please Note: The final determination for providing appropriate accommodations rests with the Accessibility Services Office and Grays Harbor College.
